

Central University of Technology, Free State

At the Central University of Technology, Free State (CUT), our focus is not only on social and technological innovation, but also on empowering students to create their own employment.

We call this Entrepreneurship Education.

The opportunity now exists for a visionary to take charge of this strategy, and to place the Central region of South Africa at the forefront of education modernisation.

Are YOU that forward thinker?

Vice-Chancellor & Principal

As Chief Executive Officer of the University, this decidedly strategic, multidisciplinary incumbent will be accountable to the Senate for academic work, and to Council for the institution's overall management.

It's a challenging undertaking demanding a dyed-in-the-wool leader boasting at least 15 years' relevant administrative and management experience at Senior/Executive level, especially focusing on higher education systems, policies and operations (both nationally and internationally). Formally, candidates will need at least a doctorate enabling management of a higher education environment, supported by a well-established academic/research track record or evidence of excellent accomplishment and recognition (e.g. through scholarly publications, teaching and/or research experience, and supervision of postgraduate students). Of equal importance, however, will be a proven record of producing innovative and sustainable solutions, an outcome- and output-oriented approach, and enthusiasm for working in a rapidly changing socio-economic and higher education environment.

CUT will highly prize superior decision-making skills, proficiency in addressing the transformation challenges of a demanding, multicultural social and educational environment, and the ability to interact at all levels.

If you meet the above requirements, this vibrant institution offers a rewarding environment in which to steer bright innovators.
